Spotlight: Please Don't Say My Name

Today's featured video is a special contribution by Karen Zusman, journalist and director of 'Please Don't Say My Name,' an audio-documentary that tells the stories of Burmese refugees living in Malaysia.

In a guest post on the Hub blog, Karen writes candidly about the ethical challenges she faced while working as a journalist inside Burma - as well as her responsibility to the stories she captured after she returned home to the U.S.

Read Karen's post - and see more excerpts from 'Please Don't Say My Name' - here. To take action and call on the Malaysian government to uphold the rights of Burmese refugees in Malaysia, sign this petition.

For more on the ethics of making documentaries, see this post by Grace Lile.
